

While modeling the case study, the following assumptions were made:

- Since its unclear in the case study, no two user accounts within the same subscription can have the same nickname.
- Every user has made atleast one past payment in order to get a subscription.
- A user is going to watch Netflix in the same country in which he makes the payment.
- Atleast one phone number of the purchaser is mandatory.
- There may exist user accounts with no viewing history or those who haven't rated any show.
- Users haven't watched each and every show present on Netflix, in which case total participation would occur unlike our model.